

Resource Round-Up

“8 GREAT”

This book should be “required reading” for anyone that cares about their personal development. “Likability” is fundamental to success. Building rapport is essential to improving relationships.

We’ve all worked for great leaders as well as weak leaders. Each type teaches us lessons. This book offers practical solutions for bringing out the best in others.

You can always make more money, you can’t make more time! Understanding the value of time and using it to your advantage makes you more successful and reduces stress.

We are always selling! Whether selling ideas to our supervisors or teams, or products to our customers, we constantly need to improve our level of persuasion. Three key strategies are presented in this text on ways to communicate.

This book changed my views on work. Saying “NO” can mean your “Yes’s” have more value and create a better outcome. An essentialist has the power to choose what is MOST important!

Self-awareness is absolutely essential to advancing in life as well as your career. How we respond to others that are different than we are creates the foundation from which business and friendship is built.

Business isn’t hard. What’s hard is managing relationships! This book is a must read for anyone who desires to have a better solution for approaching a conversation.

An absolute must read to learn how innovative companies attract, develop and retain employees today. It’s not just a four day workweek and a fancy office that entices people to work at your company.

Debbie Phillips, Ph.D., CPM® Debbie@TheQuadrillion.com 404.787.4409